

When Everything is at Stake®

Your portfolio company is doing "fine" but growth just never seems to materialize, at least not at the rate you expected. Your thesis continues to have merit but the company just can't seem to kick revenue growth into high gear. Management has tried marketing programs, adding sales staff, more advertising but the only result you see is an increased ability to explain why it is not their fault.

Revenue growth below expectations is often a symptom of poor management throughout the company. If it were as simple as just replacing a few sales people, or even replacing the VP, you'd already be home. It's not. You need to know what is really going on in the company and what is really holding them back and the management team is too close to the fire to be objective.

For over 15 years, Promontory Point Partners has been helping portfolio companies achieve their true potential. We've got the experience you need to get your investment back on track so that you can realize the returns that you know are there. We can simply be your independent advisor or we can take on any interim management role that is needed. How many more forecasts need to be missed before you take action?

You won't need us often, but when you do we'll prove to be an invaluable resource. When Everything is at Stake®, call upon Promontory Point Partners. Interim management for underperforming portfolio companies.
